

Questions and answers for article -Treatment of lead and arsenic poisoning in anuric patients – a case report and narrative review of the literature

Treatment of lead and arsenic poisoning in anuric patients – a case report and narrative review of the literature

Chun-Yuan Hsiao, Chip Gresham and Mark R. Marshall

Questions prepared by Sreeni Sharma

- 1) Heavy metal poisoning involving arsenic (Ars) and lead (Pb) can cause what?
- 2) Why does the article recommend for chelator for acute Ars poisoning in anuric patients?
- 3) What is the best combination of chelating agents when patient have encephalopathy as per the article?
- 4) What is chelation therapy?
- 5) Which are the safest and most effective chelating agents for Pb and Ars in the absence of encephalopathy?
- 6) Why CRRT is preferred over HD when BAL is used ?
- 7) How quickly does EBP need to be commenced after administration of BAL and why?